

Bertha Visits Duxbury

Photos by Deni Johnson

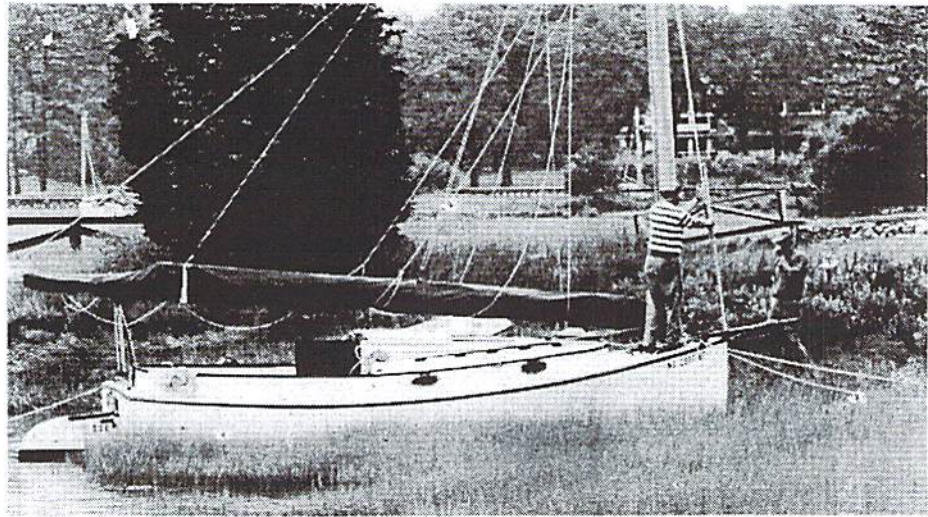

Harbormaster Don Beers with Assistant Harbormaster Peter Smey offering assistance to local boaters. Their office called all boat owners in the harbor to warn them of the coming storm.

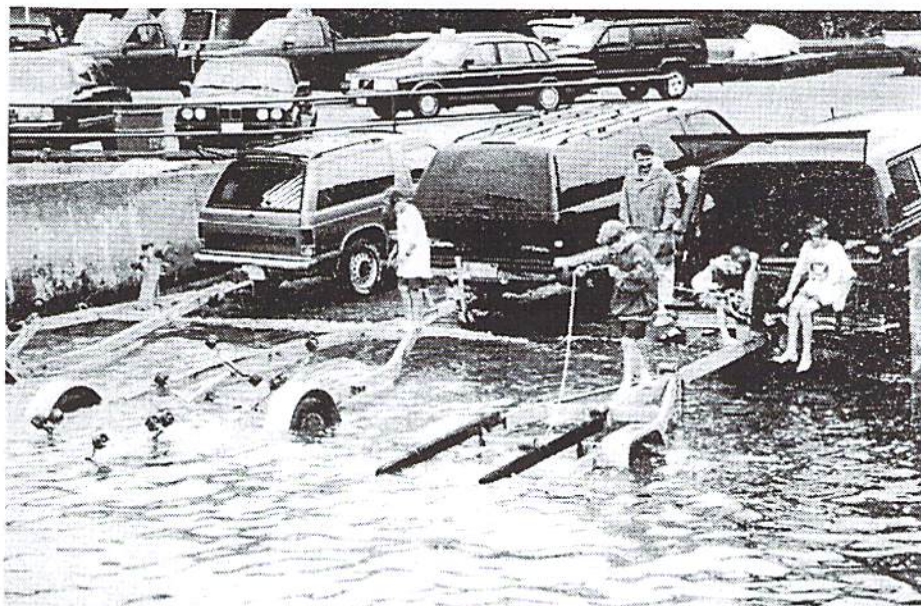

Harbormaster Don Beers said boatowners heeded the storm warnings last weekend when remnants of Hurricane Bertha blew southeast winds into town Saturday. Floats and boats were hauled out of the anchorage and only a couple of boats sank due to heavy rains. The storm hit at low tide preventing what could have been more damage, Beers said.

A casualty of Bertha was this small motor boat.

Sailors batten down their boat in the Blue Fish River in preperation of "Bertha."

Cars and trailers line up Saturday morning to pull boats out of the harbor.

Cars and trailers line up Sunday morning to put boats back in the harbor.